HUNDRED PEAKS LOOKOUT

50th Anniversary of the First Ever Hundred Peaks "Game" Hike Listed in the Schedule is Almost Here!

Sunday, March 10, 1996

On Sunday, March 10, 1946, JACK BASCOM and PARKER SEVERSON led a hike to Iron #3 and Rabbit #1 from the Monte Cristo mine area. This was the first Hundred Peaks "game" outing listed in the Schedule.

Commemorate that event with a re-creation of that same outing! Bring appropriate celebratory items to share. Meet 8:00 am at the La Cañada ridehare point for consolidation of vehicles. We anticipate a large turn out for this event. Parking will be limited at the campground. Please do not drive to Monte Cristo campground on your own. You are welcome to meet for breakfast at Lloyd's of La Cañada at 7:00. Leaders: JACK BASCOM, FRANK GOODYKOONTZ, DIANE DUNBAR, DAVID EISENBERG, THERESIA GLOVER, CARLETON SHAY, PATTY KLINE, BOBCAT THOMPSON, STAG BROWN, JOE YOUNG, FRANK DOBOS, RUTH DOBOS.

Rain may cancel the hike, but not the celebration. If it is raining, meet at La Cañada and the group will decide what to do.

Spring Fling At The Foster Lodge May 4-5

Come, come all you wild party animals, we gonna have a great potluck party in the Sierra Club's Lodge in San Diego County. The lodge is in the beautiful forested Laguna Mountains, where the air is still clear. And there are HPS Peaks to climb in the immediate area, so find your hiking boots, you will need them.

After the hikes we will gather in the lodge, have a potluck dinner, (think what specialty you will bring) FREE TURKEY will be served, compliments of the generous deep pocket of the HPS.

After the dinner clean-up we will have a sing-a-long, games & fun. Sleeping accommodation in the comfort of the lodge. All you need is to bring your sleeping bag and pillow.

Sunday we will have breakfast compliments of the HPS, and more hiking around the mountains. Beautiful spring colors expected. And all this is just for a meager $10. Send SASE with your check and phone number to RUTH LEE DOBOS.

From the Chair

By Carleton Shay

1995 has been an unusual year for the HPS, full of contrasts. We had an abnormally wet winter early on, and many trips had to be canceled or postponed. But as the year closes, the prolonged dry weather (up to the day I am writing this) has allowed us to climb peaks that are typically unapproachable at this time of year.

Our total membership is holding its own in contrast to the Angeles Chapter's, although the active members are fewer. Our peak list remains at 274, although two peaks, Snow and Kitching, have been suspended temporarily because of access problems. Our treasury is in good shape. We had two successful events this year, the traditional Oktoberfest at Harwood Lodge and the new and successful Spring Fling at Foster Lodge.

Particularly novel and encouraging this year is the growing cooperation among the climbing sections (HPS, SPS, DPS), including joint meetings and activities designed in part for recruitment but mostly to encourage members to participate in more than one section's activities. Although this was partly a result of the Chapter's decision to impose a fee for the Schedule of Activities, it was also of our own making in the appointment of Harry Friemanis as Outreach Coordinator, who has the same function in all three sections.

The brief experiment with not scheduling a formal monthly meeting program presentation to see if there is any effect on attendance showed that indeed there is; we hope that future programs will attract a growing audience.

Our conservation activities have continued successfully with highway cleanups (inspired by Julie Rush) and trail maintenance (spearheaded by Alan Coles). Jim Adler's column Register

Box has continued to encourage replacement of missing peak registers, resulting in some diminution in their number.

This has been a great year for achievements: 4 new emblem holders, 10 who completed 200 peaks, 6 new list finishers, one 2X list finisher, two 4X list finishers, one 8X list finisher, one 9X list finisher, 1 Pathfinder emblem earner, 2 who finished leading 100 peaks, 1 who finished leading 200 peaks, and 1 who finished leading the list 3 times.

Even as we celebrate our triumphs, we cannot forget Erv Bartel, who is no longer with us and whom we will never forget for his enthusiasm, encouragement and support of HPS activities.

It has been a pleasure serving the section this past year, and working with such fine people. I would like to thank all the members of the 1995 Management Committee for their untiring work: David Eisenberg, past chair; Frank Goodykoontz, vice-chair; Jim Fleming, secretary; Southern Courtney, Council representative and conservation chair; Theresia Glover, treasurer; Jennifer Lambelet, program chair; Charlie Knapke, membership and mountain records chair; Bob Thompson, Peak Guides chair; Joe Young, Lookout editor; Patty Kline, merchandise chair; Peter Doggett, Lookout advertising chair; Louis Quirarte, peak naming chair; Julie Rush, adopt-a-highway chair and Lookout mailer; and Harry Friemanis, outreach coordinator. Thanks also to Frank Dobos who again graciously accepted the roles of Nominations Chair and Awards chair.

I would especially like to thank all those who led one or more outings, and congratulate the new leaders who will be continuing their fine tradition. We now have a new award, the Bill T. Russell New Leader Award, which should inspire more participants to become leaders.

Finally I would like to thank all those who work without recognition at meetings and other events: those who help set things up, who cook, who clean up, who put things away, who otherwise pitch in and help in countless ways, and without whom we could not function.

Last, I would like to congratulate the 1996 Management Committee and wish them well. I am looking forward to seeing everyone at the Annual Awards Banquet in January!

Upcoming Programs

Rabbit and Villager Peaks Backpack

December 2 – 3, 1995

Leaders: Frank Goodykoontz,
Carleton Shay, Diane Dunbar

By Diane Dunbar

This trip was a celebration of 3 List finishes, Carleton's 8th time List finish, Frank's 9th List finish, and Frank's 3rd time leading the List.

As I sit, pen in hand, ready to write about this trip, the strong impressions made upon me by the area are still clear in my mind. I am relating it to verses in a wonderful work of classical music, Handel's Messiah, which I happened to be listening to in my car on the way there, and which set the stage for me for the whole trip. I will relate these prior descriptions and impressions before I tell the story, so all readers can picture what we went through and were feeling.

"Get thee up unto the high mountain...", "The crooked...the rough places..." I can picture the ridge to Villager, rugged, never-ending steep slopes. Shapes stand out around us, an artistic collage of jagged rocks, spindly, fanned-out groups of long Ocotillo branches, covered with big rose-thorns reaching out to grab at our backpacks; bushy, hostile but beautiful Cholla, so thickly covered with thorns that, with the sun behind it, a halo effect forms, calling to our boots; graceful, curving, puncture-loving Agave, nestled invitingly between the rocks to jab our ankles; rounded clumps of spiky Nbelina at the end of short trunks, just waiting to jab somebody in the arm; short, neat rounds of Barrel Cacti, with red thorns in swirls; clumps of Beavertail Cacti, with many flat, round segments, all sporting bright yellow thorns. Such an abundance of cruel beauty!!! And, glancing up as we climb, hundreds and hundreds of miles of vast desert views, all the way to Mexico! "Every valley shall be exalted..." The Salton Sea looked so big at the top! Nothing compared to the sight of the desert sunsets and dawn that we saw from the top and the ridge coming down. "The glory...", "Rejoice greatly...", "Shout, oh daughter..." (I actually did shout while we all rock-hopped across to Rabbit the next morning, while the golden light of dawn bathed the entire landscape and all of us marveled at the beauty of the view.) And there is nothing like stepping or jumping from one rock to another with Cholla waiting expectantly below you for a place to attach. We ended up with a multitude of almosts and a lot of disappointed plants. One unfortunate fellow was caught in the same Ocotillo twice before he escaped. That, and a few Cholla punctures was all we suffered.

The stage thus set for the story, I proceed: After greeting some DPS hikers there to climb Rosa Point that day, including Frank Dobos, we began our hike at ten minutes to eight on the morning of Dec 2. 18 hikers and the 3 leaders set out across the desert for an adventure of a lifetime. On and on across the desert floor, led by me, at this point, down into ravines and up again, we trekked, onward to the foot of the vast endless ridge leading up to Villager Peak. After a brief rest the climb began, led by Carleton at this point. The trail?? Up this ridge is interminably steep, then gradual, then interminably steep forever. The experience of carrying so much weight (most of us took 8 quarts of water plus gear) up such a steep slope for so long is grueling, character building and exhilarating.

Toward the top were the rockier areas, up, over, around and between the rocks constantly, constantly climbing all the time. All of us were in good condition for this trip – if we hadn't been we never could have handled it, but some of us moved faster than others – thus – the first group reached the top in 6 hours and 10 minutes, then came 2 more groups 1 hour apart; the last group reached the top in 9 hours and 5 minutes. Carleton led the first group up to Villager when they arrived, taking them 15 minutes round trip, and then they waited for the others. The evening was spent under a starry sky, some of us retiring with the sun and others staying up a while to enjoy the ridge and sky, and to joke a little. The weather up there was comfortably cool with very little wind.

Morning saw us all getting up under a starry sky and dressing in the dark. We left just as the sun was coming up at ten after six, and I have already described that wonderful sunrise across the ridge. The trip across to Rabbit was a brisk one, the last slope up to the peak being one where it was hard to see each other because of the rocks and terrain, and we kept in touch with each other by voice, "YOOOO...", and "YOOOO..." back and forth to make sure we were taking the same route. It took us 3 hours and 10 minutes to reach Rabbit Peak, and what a celebration we had at the top!! What a glorious and beautiful place for an event like that, and it was fitting that this is definitely the hardest backpack on the HPS List for the List finishers, because it is definitely a hard thing to do to finish the List that many times!!! We all congratulated Carleton and Frank, and took their pictures shaking hands and grinning on top of the summit block. We in the HPS are very fortunate to have leaders like these two among us. The trip back to Villager was just as brisk, those of us those of us who had not climbed it the day before signing in as we passed over the top of the peak. A few people checked out at this point to start down the ridge early, and the rest of us, after breaking camp and packing, set out for the return descent down the ridge at five after two o'clock, with a very careful attempt to keep very close together because we knew we would be traveling in the dark. The return trip went well, everybody's strength holding up remarkably well, until we started down the last steep portion of the ridge, at which point Carleton somehow stepped on a crumbly portion of trail and tumbled, actually fell, about 25 feet to the switchback below. There had been so much joking that when I first heard that he fell, I quipped, "Oh, sure..." because he was walking around unperturbed. However, by the time we reached the desert floor, I realized it was the truth and hurried over to him to see if he was hurt. Some said that they had checked him out and he was OK, but I wanted to see for myself. I said, "Did you hit your head?" and he said "Well, I just bumped my cheek a little bit." I said, "Carleton, close your eyes!" and when I shined the flashlight on his face, I saw two very nasty little cuts that were already very swollen and black and blue under them. He ended up with a black eye and 2 cuts on his face, a very lucky man.

The rest of the trip, across the desert floor directly to the cars in the dark led by Carleton, was another fun case of keeping in touch by voice, and in this case, by following a distant flashlight beam when you yelled for it. If you have never been a leader, you don't realize how hard it is to know where everyone is behind you and still navigate forwards. Carleton did this well, as he and Frank moved forward. I was in the back rounding up people up and counting in the dark, and yelling for a flashlight beam once in a while, and it was a great, a fun game of tag, let me tell you. All of this, believe it or not, is my very favorite thing to do.... The total trip down took us 5 hours and 16 minutes. It can be summed up by one statement, given by David Coons before he left. He meant it when he came up to Frank, Carleton, and me and said, I LOVED this hike." So did all of us. CONGRATULATIONS FRANK AND CARLETON!!!!

Mark This Trip On Your Calendars!! A Repeat of Last Year's Unique Day
Hike: Indian Cove to
Queen Mountain Sunday,
April 21, 1996
Leaders: Diane Dunbar &
Asher Waxman

Rough, tough scramble up a ridge near Rattlesnake Canyon to follow a watercourse through no-man's land - Indian Cove to Queen Mountain. Here are a couple of quotes from last year's write-up: "The higher we climbed, the more spectacular view we had of the valley around Indian Cove, and the rugged rocks around it... Rattlesnake Canyon, and countless rugged rock pinnacles... When we finally topped x5189, the view caught my breath! What a valley that is, with Queen on the other side. So many huge rocks and watercourses." This is my favorite trip of all, because there is no way across that valley without a compass bearing. You cannot even see the watercourse we are heading for until you literally step down into it, and the canyon to follow up the back side of Queen is completely hidden by pinnacles and rocks. Don't miss this one! For info send a sase to Diane.

List Finishing Frenzy

By Theresia Glover

And what have you been doing
For your vacation? friends ask.
Well,.....in the past ten days
I've bagged thirteen peaks,
Hiked ninety-two miles,
Up twenty-four thousand feet,
Driven two thousand miles more,
From desert to chaparral,
Earthquake faults to third class rock,
Slept with odd bedfellows,
In tents, motels, and trucks,
And eaten garbage bag salads with them
At many a trailhead.

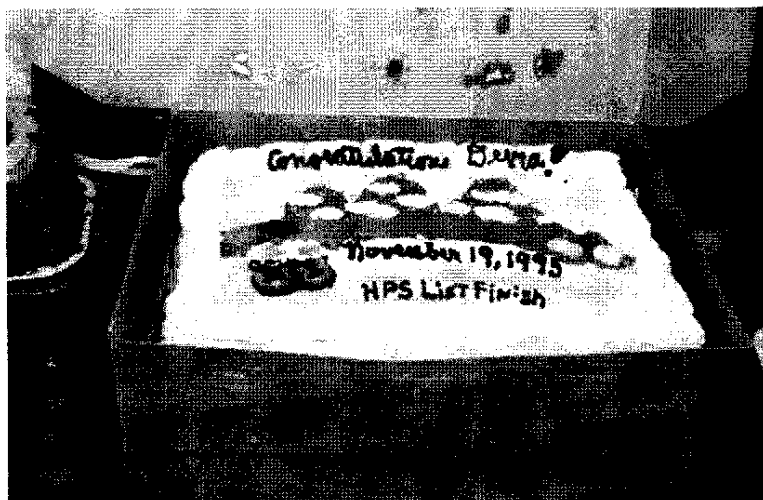

And what did you see?
Oh, the usual....
Snakes, lizards, horny toads,
Bear prints, bear scat, deer scat,
Coyote scat, mouse scat,
Mountain lion tracks,
Dust, rocks,
Many many summits
(Mostly false)
Trails, jeep roads, paths,
Hunters with guns,
Rocks and more rocks,
And after that brush
And more brush.

Did you take any side trips?
A few,...mostly
Behind this bush or that rock,
This tree or some other place.

Will you go there again?
I can't wait....
Where else can you get
Poison Oak, Poodle Dog rash,
Cuts, bruises, blisters, broken nails,
Sore feet, sunburn, grass seeds,
Yucca thorns, and allergic reactions,
All for such a good price?
Oh, and by the way,...
Only six peaks left!

Thomas Mountain the Hard Way

October 21, 1995

By Dick Farrar

In my quest of replacing previous drive-ups with hikes, Homer Meek and I bagged Thomas Mountain on October 21 via the Ramona Trail and assorted dirt roads. The starting point was just off SR 74 at the intersection with Forest Road 6S04. This is about 4.2 miles north of the intersection of SR74 with SR371 coming up from Aguanga. Immediately after turning onto 6S04 there is a large parking area. We followed the road to the west about 1/4 mile to the start of the Ramona Trail on the left. The sign says "Tool Box Spring 3 1/2." We were not sure of the remaining distance to the peak since it was hard to gauge from the Forest Service map and a very old 15-minute Idyllwild topo. However, Luella Fickle's trip writeup in the Jan/Feb 1991 Lookout described a hike on 9/22/90 which started from SR74 and reached the top via Tool Box Springs Campground in time for lunch.

We started at about 9:15 am and the weather was perfect. The Ramona trail is in excellent condition and rises slowly with many, many switchbacks. Along the way there are outstanding views of Garner Valley and San Jacinto and the Desert Divide peaks to the east. Shortly before the estimated arrival at Tool Box Springs, we encountered a good trail veering sharply off to the right. Since this seemed in the logical direction to the Thomas Mountain ridge road (5S15), we took it. After a few minutes we arrived at a picnic area with a dirt road leading away (west) from it. This was not the Tool Box Springs campground but served as a shortcut to 5S15 anyway. After another few minutes we reached 5S15 and turned right. Eventually the road has a major switchback to the left and then to the right and we soon arrived at the Ramona Campground. Shortly after that is the Thomas Mountain Campground, marked by a prominent dual outhouse just off the main road. Across from the campground we took a dirt road rising to the west. This road took us to the summit in about 0.5 mile. Our hiking time was about three hours and it was time for lunch.

There are several foundations for former lookouts or other facilities in the summit area. The views to the valleys and mountains to the west are spectacular. After traipsing along the ridge for a few hundred yards, we found a survey marker but no register. There was a man near the top with a tiny GPS antenna on a very large tripod making a survey for the USGS. He was receiving from eight GPS satellites for a 4-hour stretch. When combined with similar measurements from other sites, the USGS hopes to get 4-millimeter baseline accuracies. There were two other parked vehicles plus a tent in the summit area but we didn't encounter anyone else at that time. Returning the way we came, we encountered a lone mountain biker coming up 5S15. We decided to continue south on 5S15 beyond the dirt road we had used coming up to see if we could find the Tool Box Springs Campground. Sure enough, it soon appeared with another dirt road heading east. We descended on this road and finally came to the spring with a bright shiny spigot. The road ended but a trail continued. Although there was no sign this was the Ramona Trail. After 100 yards or so we came to a fork with the side trail we had used on the ascent. We stayed to the right and continued on down the Ramona Trail.

After a while the mountain biker caught up with us on his descent. He had been up this trail to the Tool Box Springs Campground, gone on to Thomas Mountain, and was measuring the round trip mileage. He promised to leave a note at my car with this measurement. Further down, we encountered a pack of eight mountain bikers on their way up. At the car we found the note which had 13.6 miles as the round trip via Tool Box Springs campground. Our shortcut going up was really not much shorter and we had passed up some excellent cold water. This hike was most enjoyable, particularly with the unexpected outstanding scenery and with perfect October weather.

San Bernardino East Pk,
Anderson, Shields,
Charlton, Jepson, Dobbs,
San Gorgonio, Lost Horse,
Mount Inspiration 200th
Peak

August 25 – 28, 1995

By Wynne Benti – Zdon

Friday morning, we backpacked via the Forsee Creek Trail to the camp at Trail Fork, just below the ridge, reaching it around four in the afternoon. We met a group of campers at Trail Fork who told us where we could find the spring, which was well hidden by a thick growth of willows. The flow was just a trickle, taking near twenty minutes to fill a half gallon water container.

Saturday, we walked to the crest, climbing to the top of Shields. The weather was perfect, and the view clear to the ocean. We walked from Shields across the crest to San Gorgonio, then back to Jepson, down to Dobbs and back up to Charlton, down to the main crest and a beautiful late afternoon walk to camp at Trail Fork, passing a San Diego Chapter group along the way – the only other people we saw the entire day with the exception of those doing San Gorgonio. This was the first time I had ever been to the San Gorgonio Wilderness, with the exception of a dayhike to my very first Hundred Peak, San Bernardino Peak, ten years ago from Angeles Oaks.

We returned to camp and our little slow-pouring spring by six. While we were away at the spring getting water, an unopened packet of Oreo cookies appeared on the top of one of our packs – a gift from the group of campers we had met there the previous night. Andy went over and thanked them.

Sunday morning – we went over to Anderson and San Bernardino East. The summit of San Bernardino East was perhaps the most spectacular of the bunch. Looked out across Banning and the Palm Desert. Then back to camp. Packed up and out. Drove to Joshua Tree – spent the night. Monday, drove over to and hiked up Lost Horse – at 8 am it was already 95 degrees. From Lost Horse, over to Inspiration. 113 degrees – so hot that bees would descend upon every newly parked car at the viewpoint to drink water that would drip from the air conditioners. We followed the trail to the top of Inspiration, and celebrated my 200th peak with a cold soda.

When we returned home, we learned that my friend Mark Stephens, who attended the HPS banquet with me back in 1990 and had climbed several peaks on the HPS List, had been killed in a head-on collision on Oak Glen Road on Saturday morning in Banning. Mark was an air quality specialist at SCAQMD. His wife, Linda, of three years was driving at the time. She was critically injured and will spend the next year in a wheel chair. It had happened about the time that Andy and I stood on the summit of San Gorgonio, admiring the view from the mountains to the sea.

 - 2. Have very few activities this year (only two hikes on Saturday) - this may affect attendance.
 - 3. Have had meetings with the planning crew.
 - 4. A flyer (like last years, without color) will be made available to advertise the event - Joe Young will provide them.
- B. Annual Awards Banquet update

 - 3. Table set up will be the same as last year.

 - 5. Reservation has been made with the restaurant (Taix) - they haven't done book for January yet, but it is on their calendar. Deposit will be required later.
- C. Award in honor of Bill T. Russell
 - 1. The idea behind it would be an award for new leaders. Bill was very active in mentoring new leaders, leadership training, and other aspects of supporting new leaders.
 - 2. It was MSC (Courtney/Fleming) to add the new leadership award to the HPS ballot for addition to the

Bylaws as follows: Section 8.3 - Awards New Leader

The Bill T. Russell New Leader Award is to be given in recognition to an outstanding new leader (a leader who has completed LTC in the last 5 years) who has demonstrated excellent leadership techniques by leading innovative new routes, exploring historic trails, peaks, or developing important new traditions, therefore by virtue of the frequency and variety of the trips she/he has led or co-led shows great promise as a regular and frequent future leader for the HPS. This is not an annual award but is given only as a new leader qualifies by virtue of his/her auspicious record.

3. It was MSC (Courtney/Eisenberg) that the historical language be added to the Bylaws as an addendum as follows, and that historical language for the R.S. Fink Service Award and John Backus Leadership Award be made a part of the addendum as soon as possible:

This award is named the Bill T. Russell New Leader Award in honor of Bill T. Russell, who has mentored countless new leaders; has led some of the most exciting and innovative routes, and has been instrumental in developing new traditions, such as annual Iron Mountain climb.

4. The Awards Committee will consider candidates for the new award to be given at the next Banquet (if the Award receives approval from the Membership).

Mountain Records Committee

1995 was not my most productive year for revising HPS peak guides. Work inter-ferred for most of the year. I have finally gotten back to this task. If you are hiking a peak and find that the peak guide is inaccurate or just too difficult to follow, please drop me a letter or send me your information by E - M a i l a t knapke@aol.com

Or, you may send me mail or files on the Hundred Peaks Section BBS.
