Letter From the Chair

Hello Hikers!

"Well, quite the weather we have been having!" I hope you've been getting out between storms.

A couple of things you should be aware of:

- To attract new members, especially students of the Wilderness Travel Course, we will be offering a series of "HPS Introductory Hikes" in April and May which are already on the schedule. These are moderate hikes to some of the more interesting peaks. Please participate to be a presence in the section and meet new people. If you have friends who are interested in getting into hiking or need a little nudge, consider inviting them too.
- Next, we would like to remind people to send in trip reports of their adventures to publish in the Lookout Newsletter. We are delighted to have them and they are much appreciated.
- The Spring Fling will be the weekend of May 20th, 2023 at Idyllwild Campground.
- The Waterman Rendezvous will be June 24, 2023.
Save the dates and we will see you there!

O: Trans Catalina Trail -- Join us for two days of hiking the Trans Catalina Trail (TCT) on Catalina Island! We will complete the TCT in two strenuous day hikes, totaling ~45 miles with ~8,700 feet of gain/loss. Our itinerary will include summiting Silver Peak (1,804'), one of the Great Lower Peaks, and time permitting, a side trip to Starlight Beach. Leaders will obtain hiking permits for the group, but participants must make their own arrangements for ferry passage from San Pedro to Catalina Island on Friday evening and back to Long Beach on Sunday evening. Participants also must make overnight arrangements for Friday and Saturday night in Two Harbors, where cabins, tent sites, food and water are available. More information is available from the Leaders. On Saturday, participants will carry daypacks with the usual contents (ten essentials) plus capacity for four liters of water. On Sunday, participants need carry only 1-2 liters of water in their daypacks. Backpacking will be discouraged because a strong pace will be required in order to meet the return boat schedule. Participants should note that the entire weekend includes significant personal expense. The number of participants will be limited, but there will be a waiting list. Because this outing is strenuous, participants will be required to demonstrate an adequate level of fitness by participating in at least one conditioning hike, preferably a hike to be led by Jason Park & Sunny Yi. Weather (i.e., heavy rain and/or high winds) may cancel. Classified a Sierra Club backcountry outing, this weekend outing requires a completed medical form hard copy be presented to the leader prior to the hike. And along with summer come long days, warm nights, high altitude peaks to climb, and maybe best of all, the Annual HPS Waterman Rendezvous!! Once on the summit we'll all spend some quality time enjoying the company of our friends, old and new alike, over a nice festive potluck that we all contribute to and carry up to the summit with us. Be sure to check the online HPS Outings schedule <http://www.hundredpeaks.org/outings.htm> for hikes as we get closer to the date. Eureka! We found it!

By Ron Campbell

A huge winter storm did the (almost) unthinkable, forcing the cancellation of the Wilderness Travel Course Snow Camp in mid-March.

That left me with a rare open weekend and grim weather almost everywhere. I found what I needed – a way to fill a gap in my List under sunny skies – at Eureka Peak in Joshua Tree National Park. Eureka has an unfortunate reputation in HPS circles. For many years it was a drive-up – a 26-mile drive-up. That led to its delisting in 1971. But eventually some hardy souls blazed a trail from Black Rock Canyon. It was relisted in 2016.

I posted the trip on a Wednesday. The following Saturday, seven of us met on a drizzly morning in Orange County and drove to Joshua Tree and the promise of better weather. If you want wonderful geology, go to Indian Cove or Hidden Valley. But for desert flora at its finest, you can't beat Black Rock Canyon. Everywhere you turn are different plants: pinyon pines, junipers, yuccas, cholla and of course the park's signature plant, perhaps growing taller here than anywhere else.

For the first third of the way, the route follows the California Hiking and Riding Trail. It is quite distinct and impossible to lose. The junction with the Fault Trail is the one point where a hiker might go wrong. A prominent sign marks the start of the Fault Trail but doesn't indicate which of two seemingly parallel paths is which. The CHRT is to the left, and the Fault Trail, which hikers to Eureka must take, is to the right.

After a mile or so one enters a well-defined southward trending gully. From time to time, marked trails intersect it, but the path continues south. When the gully ends, you go up sharply to a ridge, then drop down, roller-coaster like, and up again to the peak. Oh, and right about this point you can see the parking lot for Route 2 – the 26-mile drive-up. But you've arrived by the scenic route. The hilltop commands sweeping views extending toward Palm Springs and Mount San Jacinto to the south and Yucca Valley and Twentynine Palms to the north.

There are lots of options for the return. We took the first exit from the gully, a 3-mile trail that took us west and north into Black Rock Canyon and back to our cars. The trail was well-marked, and the scenery was definitely worth the detour.

Participants were Carey Beck, Eric and Jenny Gardelle, Amy Peng and Xinping Wu. Thanks to Bindu Rao for the great assist

If you need Eureka for your List, here's my advice: Skip the drive-up. Take the hike.

Old Man and Monte Arido

By Mike Macki

If you are up for a long day hike on a dirt road these are the peaks for you. Aside from the fact almost all of this hike is on a road there are some very nice features along the way in addition to some great views. We started out at the limited parking and busy Matilija Canyon Trailhead about 5 miles up from Hwy 33. There were about a dozen cars parked when we arrived.

We started up the road passing the few occupied buildings quickly crossing

Matilija Creek. We could have taken the trail up Murrietta Canyon past Murietta Camp but chose to stay on the road, mostly because we did not see the junction for the trail! The hike up Murietta Canyon is a gentle one. Very comfortable grade for the first couple of miles. The last half of the canyon is a bit steeper, but not much. Lots of regrowth after the Thomas Fire of oaks and sycamores make the hike in this canyon a pleasant one. The small stream about half way up was flowing well.

Once at Murietta Divide the terrain changes and the road becomes less travelled. As you climb, albeit at a comfortable to moderate grade, the coast, the Channel Islands, and Jameson Lake come into view. You also pass what I assume to be an old stock pond labeled Murietta Pond on the USFS topo. Fantastic sandstone boulder outcroppings dominate your hike as you approach Old Man Mountain.

On Old Man we took in the view and could see Monte Arido off to the north. The route down Old Man is obscured in some places and has few carines. It's about a quarter mile down the ridge and through a gully to get back on the road to Arido. A bit of care was needed to avoid poodle dog brush.

Back on the road it is again a gentle grade over to Arido. The summit of Arido is wide and flat, it does offer some great views all around. It was now time for the long haul back.

Nice views of the coast and Channel Islands are offered up along the way back, in addition to views of Divide Peak. There are a couple of little bumps on the way back that require some uphill but for the most part it's a downhill walk.

Here, I did see where the trail to Murietta camp came out on the road but it was getting dark by the time we got there so we stuck to the road for the hike out. We had a half moon which was enough light to get us back without headlamps. We did not see another person after the first mile for the entire day and we were the last car to leave the trailhead. 24.5 miles, 11 hours and over 6000ft elevation gain.

Black Mountain #4

3-12-23

By Isa Galan

We didn't know how the day would turn out and if we would be able to make it to Black Mountain. The weather forecast had flip-flopped several times during the week including the night before. We drove in the rain and it just stopped as we were getting close to our starting point. Gusts of wind got a bit crazy at the summit but the rain held until we got back to Pioneertown. I got a free car wash on the drive home too! All evidence of our crazy adventure was gone in no time. What a fantastic hike! Getting closer to 100 HPS peaks, 85 and counting!

 By John Martin

Bill Simpson led another 21 people on a trip to the summit. Lots of steep slopes and Class 2 scrambling. About 3300' of gain for a 7 mile round trip, with the first mile being pretty flat...that tells you it's gonna' be steep.

Weather was sunny and clear. mostly 40's - 50's with very slight breeze - basically perfect.

We did a private hike yesterday to Mt. Lowe from Lake Avenue/Cobb Estate. It was about 13 miles and 4,000' gain. It was a really nice day. Trail remained clear up to Inspiration Point, but the snow started shortly above Inspiration Point, so we wore microspikes. There was at least a couple of feet of snow at the summit.

It was an excellent day!

CURRENT PEAK SUSPENSIONS

At the present time, two peaks remain suspended. They are Hines Peak (7Q), and Heald Peak (2M), due to HPS safety concerns.

FAIRVIEW FIRE

The FAIRVIEW FIRE in the South Fork of the San Jacinto Wilderness Area (near Hemet), affected the Cabuilla's and Thomas Mountain areas. A Forest Closure Order was in effect (Order 05-12-55-22-12), with Rouse Hill (5168', Peak 29A) inside the closure area. This closure was in effect through January 24, 2023.

The closure order has now expired, but today, January 25, 2023, the San Bernardino NF indicates that the closure will be extended. Since that is not a done deal, we should consider that Rouse Hill is still closed, and wait for the details in any revised orders.

LOS PADRES CLOSURE

A sixty day closure was put into effect for the Los Padres National Forest on January 13, 2023 due to road, trail, and infrastructure damage from the recent storms. This closure extends through March, 14. Details and revisions are continuing to develop.

PISGAH PEAK - 5488'

Pisgah Peak - 5488', in the Oak Glen area, was previously on the HPS List (25H) and de-listed in 1988 due to private property issues. This peak has recently been acquired by the Wildlands Conservancy and is now open to the public.

GRANITE MTN #2 – Route 1 (2023 01 21)

The Route 1 drive to the Granite Mtn #2 Trailhead has been severely damaged by the rain runoff from the recent rainy weather. An attempt to access the Route 1 Trailhead via high clearance 4WD was not successful. The Route 3 drive to Granite Mtn #2 Trailhead was easily driven with IICV without the use of 4WD. As of (2023 01 21)

MONROVIA PEAK - Route 3

The access to Monrovia Peak via route 3 is blocked by a Monrovia City closure order. The closure order is necessary to repair extensive rainy weather damage of Canyon Park. Park reopening to hikers is expected in a few weeks. More details can be obtained by contacting the Monrovia Community Center at (909) 256-8243. Suspending Monrovia Peak is not anticipated because access should be resolved within weeks. (as of 2023 01 21)

ADDITIONAL INFO and CAUTIONARY NOTE

Also note that the western Monrovia Peak Route 1 "Clant Shell route" is blocked by the remaining Bobcat National Forest closure. Other popular peaks in the area are inside the Bobcat Closure (Clamshell Peak - 4300' and black marker) and Rankin Peak is outside the Bobcat but blocked by Monrovia Canyon Park closure. Additional areas are most likely affected by the storm damage, so be prepared to know before you go, and prepare with alternate plans.
