HPS Legend Sam Fink Passes Away

R. S. (Sam) Fink, a pioneer of the Hundred Peaks Section, passed away Saturday, June 6, 1998. Sam was 94 years old. He was the second individual to climb 100 Peaks in southern California on the informal List developed by Weldon Heald. Sam was the first individual to finish the HPS List, as well as the first to finish it a second time. The Hundred Peaks Section's highest honor is given annually in honor of Sam Fink.

The September-October issue of The Lookout will be completed August 1. All members who wish to send a testimonial for Sam for inclusion are welcome to do so. Photos, especially of Sam in his earlier days, would be appreciated.

From The Chair By Charlotte Feitshans

Hello, fellow hikers!

For this issue of THE LOOKOUT, I want everyone to especially know that this year our annual fall celebration, formerly known as Oktoberfest, will be different. It has a new name and a new emphasis! We've decided to make it more a celebration of harvest time, with foods and music not just from Germany, but all over the world.

We're calling it a "Harvest Moon Festival." There will be the same amount of beer and wine, the same amount of nearby hikes, but the food will be an eclectic assortment of foods from other countries and the music and dancing will reflect various cultures as well. This change has generated a lot of new enthusiasm among those of us who usually attend, so we hope that our new members – and old-time members – will join us for this fun event the first weekend of October at Harwood Lodge. Also, if anyone has some ideas for a new dish (perhaps an old family recipe) and would like to include it, or any other suggestion for this party, please let me know. I'll be glad to incorporate it into our planning meetings.

I'd also like the membership to know that the HPS management committee does welcome new ideas being brought to our attention. I will personally be responsible to introduce any ideas brought to me, whether by phone or in writing, at the management meeting for discussion. I feel that, although the Section has set many good precedents and fun events which have been in place for many years, there is always room for fresh ideas. With our membership falling off somewhat as it has in the last several months, it is especially important that members feel that they can make suggestions to better the group or enhance it in some way. After all, we are all volunteers.

I'd also like to encourage more members to attend our monthly Thursday night meeting and program. It's held on the second Thursday night of the month, and our programs range from travelogues to conservation and forestry issues. It's a good time talk with other people in the group, meet some of the leaders whose names you've seen in the Schedule (or hiked with), support the speakers and get a feel for what drives this group of people to volunteer their time and energy to provide hiking and outdoor experiences for everyone.

One last item: I have been hearing "on the street" that the general perception by most people of the Hundred Peaks Section is that we're all "tiger hikers," don't wait for slower hikers and generally don't care for anything except charging up the peak. Although some of our leaders are guilty of this, most of them are not this way; and I think it's time we started changing this perception. We should all start talking up the Section to new hikers and perhaps leaders should think about leading some easy hikes for beginners. We all know there are many peaks which are easy climbs, but the general public doesn't know that. It would be a good idea to also inform people about the wonderful parties we have – 100 and 200 peak attainments, weddings on peaks, List finishings, etc. All these fun events need to be expressed to fellow hikers to let them know that we're a great group of people who enjoy hiking in the mountains, making new friends and partying.

Let's all try and see if it makes a difference! Till next time...

Peak Baggers By Southern Courtney

The final push before the peak,
Quickening of pace and breath,
With beating heart and exuberance,
The peak is best.

The earth reaches out below
Ridges and canyons finger and grow
Row after row.

For a moment -
In wit and fancy -
Glide and soar -
Wide winged condor -
In mountain splendor -

Spell breaks!

"Where's the sign-in can"
"How about lunch"
"5 minutes"
"2 more to bag"
"Let's go!"

Two Spring Fling 1998 Reports

Spring Fling at Foster Lodge in the Laguna Mountains

May 2-3, 1998

By Ruth Lee Dobos

Once again we had our maximum number of participants at this beautiful, secluded Sierra Club lodge nestled in the trees high up in the mountains.

Saturday was spent by the majority of us relaxing in and around the grounds at the lodge, doing generally as we pleased. A scheduled hike was led by Frank Goodykoontz and Haven Fearn in the adjacent Cuyamaca Rancho State Park climbing Middle, Cuyamaca and Stonewall Peaks.

Late in the afternoon "the crew" began preparing for dinner. We had a fine impromptu "happy hour" with the necessities seeming to appear out of nowhere. Many people were working in the kitchen heating and arranging the numerous potluck dishes. The smoked turkey provided by the Hundred Peaks Section was the crowning touch to the evening meal. The wonderful help I had in the kitchen included Frank Dobos, Dotty Sandford, Donica Woods, Frank Atkins, Pam Streeter and others. The fantastic kitchen clean-up crew Saturday evening was led by two great legendary "E" rated leaders and dishwashers Duane McRuer and Bob Hicks with others assisting.

The evening was spent talking and reading with singing to the music provided by the guitars of Ray Soucy, David Eisenberg and Rodger Maxwell. This was a relaxing and casual time with people retiring at will to their tents on the grounds, RV's, bunks in the rooms and later on the various couches in the big room or on mattresses on the floor.

Sunday morning was a flurry of activity, the same people preparing the bountiful breakfast provided by the Hundred Peaks Section. After the breakfast, the clean-up crew, composed of almost everyone, pitched in to clean up the entire lodge from top to bottom. We were well organized, working at top speed!

The motivation was, of course, the hikes planned for the day with everyone eager to get started. Our hosts at the lodge complimented us on our organization stating that they "had never seen such a fast and efficient clean-up crew." The groups departed the lodge for hiking, while Virgil Popescu stayed to finish up the odds and ends in the kitchen.

David Eisenberg and Jim Fleming led a hike to Sheephead and Cuyapaibe Mountains south of the lodge in the Laguna mountains. Frank Dobos and I led a group of thirteen on the Pacific Crest Trail from the lodge to Monument Peak and back to the lodge. Then our group finished up the last of the details in the lodge and we departed for the last time this weekend. We hiked Garnet Peak and Garnet Mountain with the rest of our group and continued on home.

I want to thank all who assisted and all who participated in this exciting party/hiking weekend this Spring 1998.

Spring Fling Weekend

May 2- 3, 1998

By Jim Fleming

The third annual HPS Spring Fling, held at Foster Lodge in the Laguna Mountains of San Diego, was once again a wonderful time for those who participated. The weather this year was quite a bit cooler than last, perhaps due to the El Nino phenomenon (there were even forecasts for snow on Saturday night). A storm in Los Angeles didn't affect us greatly, however, and a total of 39 peak baggers showed up for hiking and camaraderie. Many folks did their own excursions on Saturday (I myself joined Bobcat Thompson and Mike Baldwin in grueling ascents of Monument Peak, Garnet Peak, and Garnet Mountain). Others enjoyed the solitude and quaint beauty of the Lodge, soon to be joined by climbers and late arrivals. The latter included three "legends" of the HPS and Angeles Chapter: Gene Mauk (who is actually working on the HPS List), Bob Hicks (former Angeles Chapter Safety chair) and Duane McRuer (recent recipient of the

Oliver Kerlein Outings award from the Sierra Club). It was our pleasure and honor to have them in attendance, as well as other regulars and newcomers. The potluck dinner Saturday night featured many delicious dishes to complement the turkey supplied by the Section. The deserts were the best! Following dinner was our traditional music (guitars provided by David Eisenberg, Ray Soucy, and Rodger Maxwell) and sing (wail) along. Soon it was time to retire (after concerned discussions of plans for hiking the next day, considering the weather forecast). Sunday breakfast was quite a feast, with almost any imaginable fare. After cleanup and chores, the various groups departed for the days hikes. My co-leads of Cuyapaibe Mtn. and Sheephead Mtn. went well (the brush not being as bad as feared). It had been some years since my last climbs of these peaks; due to private property restrictions they were now done via different routes. By mid-afternoon, having finished the peaks, we made our way home. A most enjoyable weekend!

Adopt-A-Highway Cleanup and Bagging of Mt. Disappointment and Mt. Deception

April 18, 1998

Leaders: Jim Fleming and Maggie Wilson
By Maggie Wilson

On a beautiful Saturday morning, four hearty souls met Jim and me at the La Canada Rideshare Point to help us clean up the five mile stretch of Angeles Crest Highway that the HPS has adopted. The six of us divided up into three cars/trucks, drove up to the starting point, heard our trusty leader tell us all the do's and don'ts of picking up garbage, donned our attractive Caltrans' orange mesh vests and helmets, gathered our garbage bags and trash picker-uppers, and began our game of trash pickup leap frog. Jim and Susan Loxy started the game by driving into the first turnout, Loren Wipff and Christa Vausbinder followed and "leapt" past Jim's red truck for the second turnout, and Ted Henson and I "jumped" past both vehicles to pull into the third turnout. We cleaned and jumped past each other for the entire five mile stretch. The sides of the highway still had quite a bit of snow from all of the moisture we had received this winter. The stuff we collected gave us a fresh perspective on wilderness experiences:

- Lots of socks: cold wet feet from sledding and snowball fights
- Trash can lids: cheap sleds
- Empty sandwich bags: I'm hungry
- Empty Taco Bell, El Pollo Loco, McDonalds' bags: I am really hungry, but only for cheap food
- Empty Budweiser cans: I needed SOMETHING to wash down my taco with
- A television (really!): "Hey, I've got an idea! Let's take a drive in the mountains and when we get about 50 miles from nowhere, let's pitch a 27" appliance out our car window?"

Around noon, we dumped all of our treasures at the Caltrans dump site, and enjoyed refreshments and interesting conversation. Loren shared her recent experiences as a Peace Corp volunteer in Guatemala. She hopes to return one day after earning her master's degree in nursing.

After snacks—and too many brownies—we drove to the trailhead. From there we enjoyed a pleasant seven mile hike, through some snow, to bag Mt. Disappointment, then Mt. Deception. And, of course, we had to eat more brownies at each peak, because one must keep one's energy level up during such an arduous expedition.

Thanks to all—Susan, Loren, Christa, Ted, and of course, Jim—for your hard work and enjoyable company. It was a fun team effort!

Liebre Mountain

March 22, 1998

By Charlotte Feitshans

On March 22, 1998, thirteen people and eight dogs met for an early morning hike to Liebre Mt. We had with us 2 young people under the age of 18, and was the first time I had to get the proper consent forms filled out before we started. We took the lovely, forested route on the Pacific Crest Trail which starts near the old Ridge Route off highway N2. It was a beautiful day for hiking, cool yet sunny, breezy yet comfortable. The dogs romped and gamboled, happy to be on their own without fences or leashes.

Lunch was set under a large, spreading oak near the top of the mountain. Although one of the large limbs from the tree fell where the group was gathered while we were eating our lunch, no one was hurt or even hit by it.

Although most Sierra Club hikes do not include dogs, if you've never been on a K-9 hike, you might think of joining one sometime in the future. It's a wonderful display of the joy of freedom.

Rattlesnake Pk
April 18, 1998
A Private Outing
By Joe Young

Having canceled the scheduled outing to Rattlesnake Pk on March 14 due to bad weather, I had told a few people the weekend of April 18-19 I was available to lead Rattlesnake. So it should have come as no surprise to find a message from "PatnJane" as well as a phone message asking "which day are you leading Rattlesnake?" Friday evening, April 17. I called Jane Gibbons back and said that Saturday would be better.

Saturday morning at 8:00 AM Jane Gibbons, Peter Doggett, Sonia Arancibia and Joe Young showed up at the Azusa rideshare point. Since Joe had purchased the $3 County parking pass at the Mobil station earlier, the four piled into Joe's vehicle for the ride to the trail head at the gate on Shoemaker Road. The hike began at 8:50 AM. The sky was clear and temps slightly too warm.

1 ½ mile up the road where there used to be a spade marker reading 3.39, and there used to be a narrow gully which the road used to cross, is now a washed out road. El Niño completely destroyed the road at this point. This is the spot to begin the ascent of Rattlesnake. We scrambled up the steep left bank and found the remnants of the old road. We followed the old abandoned road as it crosses the gully and up and around to the right, to a point where it drops off. Here we turned left and proceeded up the ridge. We stopped for a break on 3481', and shortly after we all agreed that nobody else would be out climbing Rattlesnake this day, David Hankins showed up. David would hike the rest of the day with us. Peter Doggett had found a jacket on the route and he wrapped it around the survey marker on 3481'. He would pick it up on descent later.

Four of us had brought clippers, and we used them freely. Rattlesnake has become a very brushy peak, and El Niño has exacerbated the problem. Between the warm temps, the continual fighting off the brush, the steepness, and clipping, we rested every 45 minutes or so. We arrived at the summit at about 1:20 PM. The register is one of the best on any HPS Peak: entries go back to 1964. Joe was especially interested in one entry: "Jean Isola June 25, 1976 #215." Jean had also written one word — "Hot." It was to be the last word she would ever write, because she perished from heat exhaustion on descent, having attempted this peak in 100+F temps. As far as I know, she was the first HPS member ever to die on an HPS Peak.

As we were about to leave the summit Joe decided to check out the north side of the summit and discovered some patches of snow! We all filled our water bottles with snow. We were lucky to find it because we had been using up our water supplies at a fast rate.

We clipped some more on descent. Even though following our clipped route facilitated route-finding on descent, it's still easy to get off route south of 4040'. After a short break on 3481' where Peter picked up the jacket, we headed on down. We arrived at the vehicles at 5:30 PM.

The four in Joe's vehicle agreed to check out The Fort Restaurant at Follows Camp, which is located close to the intersection of Shoemaker Road and the East Fork Road. We were all pleased with the service and the quality, and price, of the food. Jane, Sonia and Peter had sandwiches "Texas potatoes Cajun Everyone" while Joe had "Taiters," fried with spices. Everyone was satisfied with their respective meals. Full entries are available, as well as beer and wine. Weekend specials are available at $6.95.

West Ridge of Josephine Peak
May 31, 1998
By Erik Siering

I joined Harriet Edwards for her fine HPS finish party on Josephine Pk (congratulations!). A car shuttle gave me the opportunity to saunter up the trailless west side, rather than suffer the tedious fire road route with the group. This rarely visited ridge line appears daunting, featuring a sheer rocky southern flank and densely brush blanketed slopes to the north. Ann Kramer did the shuttle duty before joining the others, dropping me off on Angeles Forest Highway several miles from Clear Creek Junction. The crux of the route is the starting point, as the ridge terminates abruptly at the highway in loose crumbling hillsides, aka cliffs. Runout to the pavement and traffic below is unappealing. The best approach is a tree-shaded drainage at the 22.45 mile marker, just north of the base of the ridge. A parking turnout is located across the highway.

Head up this drainage from a culvert which is decorated by green graffiti, and approach an intermittent waterfall. The waterfall was flowing freely due to recent storms. Carefully scramble to the right, on c12 dirt and decaying rock, for about a hundred vertical feet to better footing. From here, another 500' gain along the subsidiary rib leads to the relatively bare main ridge that is visible above. This comprises the only steep stretch and appreciable brush on the route. The latter is made readily passable by game trails.

The ridge line offers grand views south towards the forest highways and city basin, and north to the Mt Gleason massif, the Tujunga Dam and Narrows. Power lines cross several hundred feet below. The route hereon simply follows the grassy break to the distant summit (apparent by the radio repeater and antenna), wending over or around occasional rock outcroppings. Dense stands of short "poodledog" evidence past activity of fire.

The fire road is encountered 50' before the summit. Follow it or continue straight on to the top, completing 2.5 miles and 2400' gain. Here I found Minor White comfortably napping amidst a swarm of ladybugs, in anticipation of our group. Harriet and her festive band arrived shortly, and we then set on the foremost task of heavy noshing and imbibing bubbly!

A Memorable Memorial Weekend

May 23-25

By Harvey Ganz

Well, I didn't get the 15 peaks that I planned to, but I did have an exciting time the Memorial Day weekend.

Friday - Scodie Mountain - alternate route. The driving instructions are way too complex. As you drive north of Mojave on Highway 14, your compass Jawbone canyon on the left and then the Randsburg Road on the right. At 16.7 miles past the Randsburg road, you come to a group of deserted buildings on the left and you turn left just at the end of this group of buildings and head west on a dirt road which becomes marked with "SC51" signs. Stay on this road for approximately 8 miles to the end where a sign says "Kaveah Wilderness." The west end of the dirt road (SC51) is shown in Cow Heaven canyon on the Horse Canyon Quad.

Turn around very carefully here or park before you get to this point. I got stuck in the soft sand on the downhill side of the road and even with letting the air out of the tires and using my shovel, I dug my van into a hole about 15 feet off the road. Fortunately, a camper down the road took me to the Jawbone canyon ORV BLM ranger station (about 20 miles each way) where the desk clerk was able to radio contact a ranger with a pickup and a chain. We were finally able to get my van back on the road and by the time I was able to pump up my tires (with a bicycle tire pump) it was 3:30 PM. Use the Auto Club Kern County map and the Horse Canyon and Walker Pass topos.

I went up the ridge and two hours later hit the peak. The view was great and coming down was fun (only 40 minutes).

Saturday - Morris and Jenkins

I drove back to highway 14 and left on Indian Wells Canyon road to the kick off point for Morris and Jenkins. Again the driving instructions are too complex and the road is very difficult for a van and I would not take a passenger car in here. There are a lot of deep ruts from all the rain (a lot of wildflowers, too).

Use your 1972 Owens Peak topo as a road map and follow the dirt road to the "Pack Trail" just north of Buena Vista canyon and south of Morris Canyon (also due east of Three Pines Cyn on the left edge of the map. You walk through a deserted mining camp and follow the canyon (trail) up to the saddle marked 6565' where you pick up the Pacific Crest Trail.

For Jenkins, do not follow the ridge directly to the peak. Follow the PCT about 1.5 miles to the ridge leading to the northeast from the peak. If you follow the ridge like I did, you will have to circle around or climb up and down (3rd and almost 4th class) several peaks (sentinels) before you get to Jenkins. Some of these vertical ascents/descents are very hairy with lots of exposure and this route will add 3 - 4 hours to your trip. It was pretty exciting, though!

Sunday - Owens and Five Fingers

To get to the trailhead for Owens, follow the Indian Wells canyon dirt road to the end. There is a little "O" marked on a sign post at the junction that takes you to the Morris/Jenkins starting point. Bear to the right at this junction. The old write-up that I have says that you can drive into a small parking area near the Indian Wells creek, passing an Owens Peak wilderness sign until you come to an old clearing near the creek. Continue up the jeep trail, it follows the canyon all the way and becomes a good ducked trail. Do not leave the jeep trail and cross the creek as my writeup says. If you do, you will slog through a lot of brush on what used to be a trail and you run into the real trail later. Eventually, you start to climb a ducked gully filled with white rocks. Continue up this gully until you see another gully to your left which has black rocks. There are supposed to be ducks leading you to your left, but I missed them and again found myself scrambling up a 3rd class shute until it got too hairy. I went back down and around the rocks to the left, found the ducked trail up the black rock pile and got to the peak after five hours. The view was great!

For Five Fingers, you park near the bee hives and head up toward a gully between the westernmost finger (the peak) and the one next to it. Peter Doggett tells me that you go between these two peaks before going around to the left. I went around the west side of the peak and again found myself going up some hairy 3rd class shutes. I tried several of these but always stopped 3 - 5 feet below the ledge that gets you to the very top. I never did find the ducked trail that gets you to the correct shute. These 3rd class shutes really get the adrenalin pumping when you are alone and hanging on by your fingertips.

Monday - Tehachapi and Double Mountains

I got an early start because I wanted to do Black Mtn #3 and still get back to town for a going away party. On Sunday, the weather in the desert was in the high 80's, so when I started, I left my fleece jacket in the van. When I got to the top of the road on Tehachapi (7000'), there were lots of snow drifts that I had to climb over. There was snow all the way to the top. I looked to the south and saw the microwave tower on Double and a lot of fog blowing in from the west. Double Mtn was completely covered in snow! By the time I got to the peak on Double Mtn, I was surrounded by fog and the visibility varied between 25 to 50 feet. I was not able to see the microwave towers and Tehachapi Mtn had disappeared off the face of the earth.

Somewhere on the way up Double Mtn, I lost my topo map. I probably would not have helped because of the visibility, but having the map gives me a sense of security. I never found the peak of Tehachapi Mtn on the return (it was not visible). Using my compass, I got to the top of a ridge and started down in a northerly direction. There were some steep gullies going down the north side, but they were covered with snow and it was too slippery to go down. I decided to head in a NNW direction. At the top of the ridge a light hail started and turned into a light cold rain. Fortunately, I had my Goretex rain gear and waterproof glove liners so I stayed warm and dry. When I got to elevation 6800' I came across a jeep road and took it in a northerly direction. Every time the road forked I tried to go north or northwest, but the road switched back and forth sometimes going in a southerly direction. I resisted the temptation to leave the road and head due north, which in the worst case scenario would get me to the town of Tehachapi or highway 58.

There is a strange feeling that you get when you are lost and alone and you are hoping to find civilization before dark arrives. Fortunately, I had my compass, extra food, water, and clothing, and two flashlights. These provided some emotional comfort.

After wandering around for about 3 hours and not knowing where the heck I was (but going down and north), I came to the paved road leading back to the park and I arrived at my car about 4:30 PM. Visibility was still poor as I headed home until I reached Mojave where the sun was shining.

Written to honor my daughter
Jenny's wedding, May 2, 1998
Marriage is like a Mountain Climb
By Jane Gibbons

Marriage is like a mountain climb. It appears that you may be on a level, easy to follow road, with many travelers guiding you on the way. Then the road forks and unless you check your compass (God) and your peak guide (your community of spiritual guides), you may not know which road to take. Not even a marked map (the Bible) may give you a well enough defined guide.

There may be bears who rob you of some of your provisions. Your resources may become so scarce that you doubt your strength to continue.

As the way becomes steeper, you need to help each other to move at a similar pace.

Sometimes the brush may be so thick that you have to cut out the added growth to find the way. You'll need to clip back and pare down.

Some of the steeper rocks will need rope climbing or pick ax skills. Don't be afraid to seek counsel at such times.

There may be times when you reach a false summit only to see that you have to descend into a saddle before you continue.

Your greatest joys may also be your most challenging burdens as your back-packs are filled with little bundles of joy. No one knows if there will be a "peak experience." For your mother it was having you and your sister. Then, before long, time will pass quickly and your children will have to choose their own paths.

As you descend, your concerns may be more focused on physical healing, nurturing, and nursing each other. At the end, your path might be a single journey. May the memories of the path you have taken together be joyous as you reflect upon your life.

Remember to celebrate each milestone of the way, as this renews your commitment to each other and gives strength to climb other peaks together. Remember that your eternal compass is God's gracious love.

Tina Stough poses between Frank and Ruth Lee Dobos on the summit of Glendora Mountain on February 28, 1998. This day Tina completed the Lower Peaks List. Furthermore, Tina had already completed the Sierra Peaks, Desert Peaks, and Hundred Peaks Lists! Congratulations, Tina!
